

Useful Questions to Ask

- How will I know if progress is being made?
- What tools and methods will be used to measure progress?
- Who is going to implement these tools and methods?
- How often will progress be measured?
- How will the school communicate progress?
- What is the best way for you to communicate with school people?
- How often should you communicate with the school?
- What is the team going to do if little or no progress is being made on goals and objectives?
- How will special education services be coordinated and by whom?
- What can you do to help your child at home?

“Special Education: A Parent’s Guide to a Child’s Success”
Michael T. Bailey © 2007